
Fei Sun and HuiJun Huang

ABSTRACT: There is still a serious shortage system of state intervention; it has become an important obstacle to restrict the development of our people with a fair environment. It brings a series of economic and social problems, because the difficulty of political reform is still prominent, and economic reform is not thorough. Elaborated the concept of state intervention, I began to analyze the environmental impact of institutional change on the development of equitable, respectively, on the contemporary of our national political, economic, educational and cultural intervention system changes. State intervention system from the imperfect to enrich and perfect development, the goal of this change is to think that the development of people, resulting to provide a fair environment.

KEYWORD: state intervention; System Change; the human development; fair environment

At present, the reform of political system is difficult, not only leading to the lagging of reform in political system, but also hinder the deepening of economic system reform. The economic system reform is not thorough, the market economy system should be further improved, a series of economic and social problems which are still prominent. Therefore, the state intervention system shortages still exist, it has become an important obstacle that to create a fair environment for human development. To understand the system of state intervention is the first thing to understand the macroeconomic regulation and control and state intervention.

1. The elaboration of the concept

1.1 There are many scholars in the academic circle of our country will be "Macro-control" conception.

The extension of the concept definition is very wide. The macroeconomic regulation

Fei Sun (1979-), male, Nanchang Teachers College, lecturer, master, research direction: The political theory (13361620499) (9296329@qq.com).
Huijun Huang (1985-), female, Nanchang Teachers College, lecturer, master, research direction: The political theory.
and control is equivalent to state intervention. As edited by Ma Hong, "What is Socialist Market Economy", in the book he thinks "the so-called macro-control, in the strict sense, it refers to the government to realize macro (total) balance, to ensure the sustainable, stable, coordinated growth of economy, and to regulate and control the total amount of money expenditure, fiscal and foreign exchange payments total[1]." Wang Huizhong and Zhuang Weimin, of the chief editor think in the book "Macroeconomic Regulation and Control", Cao Yushu said in the "innovation" of that macroeconomic regulation and control mechanism.

The so-called macro-control is refers to under the condition of market economy, the government from the macroeconomic point of view, the main use of economic means, legal means, and the national economy development to the target with the necessary administrative means to regulate and control, maintenance of the healthy operation of the economy." Obviously, the behavior of government intervention in the economy are all regarded as the macroeconomic regulation and control. The extension of the concept definition is very wide; the macroeconomic regulation and control is equivalent to state intervention. As edited by Ma Hong, "What is Socialist Market Economy", In the book he thinks "the so-called macro-control, in the strict sense, it refers to the government to realize macro (total) balance, to ensure the sustainable, stable, coordinated growth of economy, and to regulate and control the total amount of money expenditure, fiscal and foreign exchange payments total[1]." Wang Huizhong and Zhuang Weimin, of the chief editor think in the book "Macroeconomic Regulation and Control", Cao Yushu said in the "innovation" of that macroeconomic regulation and control mechanism. The so-called macro-control is refers to under the condition of market economy, the government from the macroeconomic point of view, the main use of economic means, legal means, and the national economy development to the target with the necessary administrative means to regulate and control, maintenance of the healthy operation of the economy." Obviously, the behavior of government intervention in the economy are all regarded as the macroeconomic regulation and control.

1.2 Based on that, the macro-control to the economic function of state functions in the way, in this way, the government does not directly use of executive orders to intervene in the market.

But the use of economic function, a kind of state intervention in the economy to guide the behavior of market main body of the government's intention to act on the way. The government intervention and the state intervention are different: the politics think the 'Government' and the 'State' are different, the former refers to the administration, while the latter refers to the administrative, legislative, judicial consists of three powers system[2]."

Moreover, many scholars on the relationship about the state power and market, like a word with the government intervention. But in the strict sense, the state and the government are two different economic and political concepts, the narrow sense refers only to the government agencies that the administrative power and political have power of a country or region, while in the framework of generalized, the government often refer to the state. So this paper refers to the broad sense Chinese state intervention and government intervention and the national macro-control should belong to the same meaning, namely, on this basis it can be interchanged to refer to.
Intervention translated into Chinese is also involved in the intervention of justice, so the government intervention also said the state intervention, that it refers to the country as an administrator, through certain measures, including administrative, legislative, judicial measures, on the politics and economy, education, culture, ecology, social life such intervention, in order to make the operation and development of the law in line with national target. State intervention is not equivalent to the macroeconomic regulation and control, the scope of its scope is more extensive than the macroeconomic regulation and control. The macroeconomic regulation and control is the regulation and control of the operation of the whole national economy as a whole, belongs to the total control; and the scope of state intervention not only includes the macro field, but also the micro field, it covers all areas of reform practice. Since it is composed of administrative, legislative, judicial three power system in The theory of state , so the system of state intervention also include administrative intervention system, national legislation system and national judicial intervention system. While the system of state intervention in the practice of the reform China refers to the country's political system, economic intervention system, education system, cultural system, including the political system, economic system, the government management system, education system, scientific research system, and the specific management rules and regulations. This paper discusses the changes of the interference system, institutional change is the new system to produce, process and negation, discard or change the old system, through this dynamic process to make the system more in line with the economic and social development, and promote the development of people.

2. The system changes has influence on the man of the fair environment for development

2.1 First of all, from the changes of contemporary political intervention system in China, the environment for the development of the fair's impact on people gradually, and develop increasingly in perfection. Aristotle said: "the political system is the original state residents by allocation of political rights system." The political system is the restricting people's action, it provides rules for human action, the action of standardization. The system as a kind of rule, which defines the scope of human activity, to tell the person what can, should, must do, also tell people what not to do, to do what is prohibited. The political system and also to regulate people's social relations, Marx said: "the human nature is no abstraction inherent in each single individual. In reality, it is the sum of all social relations." People get its essence as a social existence; that is, one of the socialization process.

In twentieth Century since the 90's, with the deepening of the reform, the reform of the nature, characteristics, scope have undergone great changes, the social transformation has entered a crucial stage. The country put forward the strategic policy of "political reform", the gradual reform path, it is the social system and social structure transformation and change. This kind of transformation and change for human development to create a broader space, providing a more equitable conditions for human development, such as the national civil service system of our country political system, from the initial organization construction is not perfect, there is no system of laws and regulations strictly standardized management of the civil service member, to 1984 promulgated the "Regulations on the management of cadres", and then to the 2005 meeting of the National People's Congress passed the "Civil Servant Law", there is no uniform standard of the civil service system to recommend to the fair, open, fair examination, is the embodiment of full democracy, ensure the people truly equal access to this power, but also the process of institutional change on the development of people-oriented, people pay more attention to fairness.

2.2 Secondly, from the changes of contemporary economic intervention system in China, it liberated of the thought, developed the productive forces, promoted the development of their own and crested a fairer environment for human development. The third plenary session of the 11th central committee of the communist party made economic construction as the center and achieved a major shift from the class struggle to the economic construction. The guidance of emancipating mind and seeking truth from the facts implemented reform and open and gradually transition from planned economy to market economy. In 1992, Deng Xiaoping's southern tour speech pointed out, “The essential difference between socialism and capitalism does not depend on whether planned economy accounts for more or market economy does. A planned economy is not equivalent to socialism, capitalism has planned. Market economy is not capitalism, socialism also has the market. Plan and market are economic means.”

The brilliant exposition from the root to lift category of social thoughts that a market economy and planned economy as the basic system belongs. It made a major breakthrough that the socialist can compare with market economy. It was also a major development of Marx's theory. The household contract responsibility system and shareholding system since China's reform and opening up in the economic field liberated people's thinking, stimulated the enthusiasm of people to create and promote economic and social development. It also provided a hitherto unknown free space and realistic conditions for human development and created a fairer environment for human development. People’s ability to use and transform the nature and society increased in a relatively short period of time.

2.3 Third, from the changes of contemporary education intervention system of our country, education reformed deeply and steadily. It paid more attention to the balanced development, fairness and people. In 1977, the resumption of college entrance examination system for the education provided a relatively fair education system. In 1986, the implementation of nine year compulsory education system transformed the equal rights of education into the popularization and spread of education and the pursuit of equality of educational opportunity. Form 1999, our country made the expand enrollment education reform policy (including bachelor's degree, graduate students) to stimulate domestic demand, consumption, promote economic growth, alleviate employment pressure. Simply from 1999, the higher education began to expand enrollment (including bachelor's degree, graduate students). Large scale expansion of China's colleges and universities improved education stage. More and more people can enjoy the fair education. It is a fundamental role to promote the quality of people and create a fair environment. Report of the Seventeenth Party Congress pointed out “education is the cornerstone of national rejuvenation, education fair is an important foundation for social justice.” So the educational fairness is the premise and foundation to realize social justice and building a harmonious society. It is also an important strategic guiding ideology. Education equity is the essence of social education. It is an important manifestation of the balanced development of education. Scholar Yang Dongping thinks that the new Chinese education fair trajectory is from equality of right to equality of opportunity, from elite to mass education, from the benefits to the industry development, from single to diversification.
3. State intervention system and a fair environment for human development have the dialectical unity relationship

3.1 Marx analyzed three social forms of people development. First, the dependence of people (mainly at first is naturally occurring), was the first form of society. In this form, the production capacity is only in a narrow range and isolated development. Second, Independent development of people based on dependence on objects is the second largest form. Third, individual all-round development and their common social production capacity became their societal wealth. Second stages created conditions for the third stages. The first two stages are the basis for the development of the third stage. Only the third stages of the development of a comprehensive human freedom is the ultimate goal of modern social system change. It is the target of social development.

The all-round free development of people is indispensable fair. Fair environment is the premise and foundation. Marx and Engels pointed out in the "Holy Family".

3.2 Since the human character is caused by the environment, it is necessary to make environment become humane environment. This kind of social environment will affect the members of society, and in the very extent determines the development of the society. Rawls said: "the system in the form of society affects the members of the society, and to a large extent determines the kind of person they want to be, and they are the kind of person.[8]" Environment for the development of equity is influenced and constrained by the system of state intervention, reasonable to human development as the goal of the construction of social equity and environmental state system is indispensable important one annulus.

State intervention, institutional changes, human development, fair environment, is an organic whole. This is a connection from the isolated contact, from partial to full process. The state intervention from imperfect to perfect the development of the system, the goal is to change the thought that this person, to provide a fair environment for the development of people. In the early years of the Republic, due to economic conditions, people can only be subject to imperfect system and the laws of the objective external world. Although people on a small system timely adjust, had a negative impact on environment of the development of fair but not good system or to the people, suffered setbacks that social development, such as "during the cultural revolution". The system determines the development of human society, which is reflected in the human development restriction and excitation. Influence of the development of system of the people, Marx said: "the only good principles of despotism is the neglect of humanity, which is less than man, but this principle than a lot of other principles of good place, because it is not only a principle, but also the fact that. Tyrant always regarded people is very cheap[9]." Deng Xiaoping said "good system can make the bad guys, bad system can make good people can not fully do good, or even go into reverse[10]." History, only people-oriented, from the point of view of the overall development of the people, to create a fair environment for human development, in order to overcome all kinds of challenges, and promote the healthy and orderly development of society.

At present, the system of state intervention in the transition period of China remains to be further strengthen the transformation, such as the reform of the political system is difficult, has not yet been carried out drastic reform, leading to the political system reform lag, is slowing down China's socialist democratic politics construction pace, but also hinder the deepening of economic system reform. The economic system reform is not thorough, the market economy system should be further improved, a series of economic and social problems which are still prominent.

Therefore, the state intervention system shortages still exist, it has become an important obstacle environment restricts our country's fair. This is not conducive to the sustainable development of economy and society, but also caused the development of people, and bound constraints limit. For example, the socialist democracy is not sufficient, not perfect, is not conducive to social member of subjectivity, creativity; defect of the cadre and personnel system, give full scope to the talents selection can lead to virtuous are often difficult to put in place; imperfect competition mechanism leads to tilt the competitive arena; use of educational resources and the unbalanced input. The adverse situation of talent cultivation in the remote and poor areas, and exacerbated the imbalance in regional development and so on. Therefore, to strengthen the system construction and innovation, to provide a fair environment for human development, people-oriented, promote human development, is an important task of political, economic, educational and cultural system reform in our country at present, but also realize the essence of the benign operation of social transformation of our country's requirements.

In a word, in order to promote the great practice of socialism modernization construction, that the state intervention in the system should be in accordance with the requirements of comprehensive development of human development. Through the establishment and improvement of environmental justice to accelerate the pace of construction and innovation of system, realizing the comprehensive and sustainable development of China's economy and society. We implement the people-centered scientific concept of development a major issue must be given priority.

References: